

ciety that would be at the crossroads of the Americas and, therefore, at the forefront of the future. In the end, I think that this decision was made on the merits, because our best hopes to do things that democracies find difficult to do—get people together across racial and economic and ethnic lines—lies in the efforts that are being made there now. And I believe that in December, we will have a great gathering in a place that can symbolize the future toward which we are all tending. Thank you very much, we're adjourned.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:37 a.m. in Room 450 of the Old Executive Office Building. A tape was not available for verification of the content of these remarks.
